Environment Agency Sheep Dipping advice

If you are planning to dip your sheep this autumn, you need to make sure that the way you dispose of your dip is legal. It is also important to make sure that any dipping operations are planned and managed carefully to prevent any dip chemical causing water pollution.

If you dispose of dip on your own land, you must have an Environmental Permit. This sets out conditions that allow you to dispose of dip in a certain area that has been assessed to ensure that the disposal does not pose a risk to any surface or groundwaters. This is to protect streams, rivers and water supplies from contamination. Click HERE for full details of the EA advice.

Contact the Environment Agency on 03708 506506 to apply for a permit or click HERE to apply online.

A code of practice is available HERE

Sheep & Goat keepers in England – Don't forget to record and submit your annual inventory

- You need to update your holding register with the number of sheep and goats that are on your land on 1st December 2018.
- You also need to complete an inventory of the sheep and goats you keep. You can complete it online, or send the paper form by post to the Office of National Statistics. You must do this by 31 December 2018

Grassland derogations for 2019

If you need a grassland derogation for 2019, you must apply by 31st December 2018.

If you have a current derogation, this will finish on the 31st December 2018 and you must reapply for 2019.

AMMONIA FUTURES: Challenges to reducing ammonia emissions facing farmers

Thursday 6th December, 9.30am – 3pm

Luctonians Rugby Club, Hereford Road, Kingsland, HR6 9SB

The UK faces challenges in meeting ammonia emissions targets. One of the main sources of ammonia emissions in the UK are livestock manures and slurries (in housing, stores, and through land spreading) and urea fertiliser.

The Department for Environment Food & Rural Affairs has commissioned Ricardo Energy & Environment to gather information from stakeholders on the barriers and opportunities for reducing ammonia emissions from farming. Defra wishes to gain views from farmers on the feasibility of farm scale adoption of mitigation measures to reduce ammonia emissions. Ricardo is holding a series of thirteen regional workshops across England. By attending these workshops, stakeholders and farmers will have the opportunity to influence policy options for ammonia abatement and raising awareness of the significance for farmers.

Booking is essential, and places are limited to 20.

Orchids in Herefordshire Grassland

An illustrated talk by Suzanne Noble of British Orchids

Thursday December 6th, 7.30 pm tea and coffee provided

At Bodenham Parish Hall, Bodenham, HR1 3LB

Come and find out:

- Why are orchids such iconic and popular plants?
- What can they teach us about soil and sward health?
- Why do they often take years to establish when extensive grassland management is re-introduced?
- How can an understanding of orchids help us manage grassland for a wide range of other native plants?

Suzanne Noble formerly ran Plantwild, a local native plant nursery and wild seed harvesting company. She now focuses on raising native orchids in her Herefordshire lab and polytunnel for British Orchids and has a keen interest in developing techniques to conserve some of the most endangered species of native orchids.
